Introduction

The 2026 wildfire season was one of the most significant Wales has experienced.

Wales experienced its hottest summer on record, including the driest July ever recorded. These conditions created an environment in which wildfire could spread rapidly and develop into prolonged, complex incidents affecting communities, businesses, agriculture and the natural environment.

During July and August, Fire and Rescue Services across Wales responded to a number of major wildfire incidents, including incidents at Conwy Mountain, Llanwonno Mountain, Llangynidr Reservoir and Rhandirmwyn. The scale and duration of these incidents placed significant pressure on emergency responders, partner agencies, local communities, farmers and landowners.

The response demonstrated the strength of partnership working across Wales. Firefighters, landowners, Natural Resources Wales, local authorities, farming representatives, Welsh Government and local communities worked together to respond to incidents, protect property and livelihoods, and minimise the impact on communities and the environment.

The experience of summer 2026 reinforced an important lesson: wildfire resilience cannot be delivered by any single organisation. It requires a coordinated, long-term approach focused on prevention, preparedness, education, land management and partnership working.

The Wales Wildfire Board exists to support that ambition, bringing together organisations from across Wales to develop a shared understanding of wildfire risk and a coordinated approach to reducing its impact.

Our Partners

Mid and West Wales Fire and Rescue Service, South Wales Fire and Rescue Service, North Wales Fire and Rescue Service, Dyfed Powys Police, South Wales Police, Gwent Police, North Wales Police, Met Office, National Farmers Union, Farmers Union of Wales, National Trust, Natural Resources Wales, Young Farmers Wales, Pembrokeshire Coast National Park Authority, Bannau Brycheiniog National Park, Eryri National Park, Keep Wales Tidy, Public Health Wales, Welsh Government, Welsh Local Government Association, CrimeStoppers.

Burn to Protect Campaign

As part of its Wildfire Charter, the Wales Wildfire Board is committed to delivering a consistent, evidence-led and partnership-focused approach to wildfire prevention and resilience across Wales.

The #BurnToProtect campaign remains an important element of that ambition.

Recognising that controlled burning continues to play an important role in land management when undertaken safely and responsibly, the campaign encourages farmers, landowners and commoners to work closely with Fire and Rescue Services, Natural Resources Wales, farming unions and other partners to reduce wildfire risk.

In 2026, the campaign takes on additional importance.

The unprecedented wildfire activity experienced across Wales this summer highlighted the importance of proactive prevention measures, responsible land management and strong partnership working. The campaign therefore seeks not only to promote safe burning practices, but also to strengthen wider understanding of wildfire risk and the collective responsibility for reducing it.

Ultimately, #BurnToProtect aims to support safer communities, more resilient landscapes and a stronger partnership approach to wildfire prevention across Wales.

Our Communication Approach

Following the 2026 wildfire season, communications activity will focus on strengthening awareness, understanding and resilience.

Campaign communications will emphasise:

- The scale and impact of the 2026 wildfire season.
- The importance of prevention and preparedness.
- Responsible land management.
- Safe and responsible controlled burning.
- Partnership working and shared responsibility.
- Protection of communities, livelihoods, wildlife and the environment.
- Learning from wildfire incidents across Wales.
- Building long-term resilience to future wildfire risk.

All communications activity will be coordinated through the Wales Wildfire Board to ensure consistent messaging, shared learning and a one-Wales approach.

Our Commitments

Mid and West Wales Fire and Rescue Service Communications Team has developed a campaigns page on its Service website #BurntoProtect which holds all the materials developed to support the Burn to Protect campaign, including pre-written and pre-translated social media messages and downloadable social media graphics, for your ease of access.

Mid and West Wales Fire and Rescue Service Communications Team will also provide representation at the various groups associated with the Wales Wildfire Board, updating all agencies on any developments of note, including any changes to the media and communications approach.

All agencies are asked to send copies of all proactive communications activity to the Mid and West Wales Fire and Rescue Service Press Desk (pressofficer@mawwfire.gov.uk) so that an activity log may be coordinated.

All agencies are also asked to ensure that the Chair of the Wales Wildfire Board is made aware of any approaches for media interviews. You can do this by notifying Mid and West Wales Fire and Rescue Service's Press Desk by emailing pressofficer@mawwfire.gov.uk.

Localised media and communications approaches will be coordinated by each of the partners on the Wales Wildfire Board, to ensure local issues are addressed and highlighted as appropriate, whilst aligning any messaging to the wider aims, objectives and communications approaches of the Board.

All agencies are encouraged to share any publicity materials they have prepared in support of the Wales Wildfire Board activities as outlined in its Wildfire Charter. Again, this material will be shared on the campaign's webpage and will be coordinated by Mid and West Wales Fire and Rescue Service's Communications Team.

Our Aims

Communications activity will seek to:

- Increase awareness of the growing wildfire risk facing Wales.
- Support engagement with farmers, landowners and commoners to promote safe, legal and responsible controlled burning.
- Highlight the lessons learned from the 2026 wildfire season.
- Demonstrate the value of partnership working in preventing and responding to wildfires.
- Encourage responsible behaviour amongst all countryside users.
- Raise awareness of the impact wildfires have on communities, public services, businesses, agriculture, biodiversity and infrastructure.
- Share practical steps that individuals and organisations can take to reduce wildfire risk.

- Support Wales' long-term approach to wildfire resilience and preparedness.

Our Audiences

Primary Audiences

- Farmers
- Landowners
- Commoners
- Land management organisations
- Agricultural representative bodies

Secondary Audiences

- Rural communities
- Walkers and countryside users
- Tourism organisations
- Community groups
- Local authorities

Strategic Stakeholders

- Welsh Government
- Members of the Senedd
- Emergency services
- Public sector partners
- Environmental organisations
- Farming unions
- National Parks
- Natural Resources Wales

Influencing Audiences

- Media

- Community leaders
- Elected members
- Social media audiences

Our Plan

- Collaborative Press Releases – One to be circulated at initiation and then on a reactive basis as and when required. To ensure consistency in terms of the message and statistics provided, please copy all press releases to pressofficer@mawwfire.gov.uk so that they can be added to the campaign webpage to be shared with the group for information.
- Case Studies – If individual organisations find an opportunity to highlight a specific case study in their area, then please proceed with publicising. Please also share with the Mid and West Wales Fire and Rescue Service press desk so that awareness can be raised across the Wales Wildfire Group.
- Radio adverts – The group proactively encourages the use of Radio advertising to promote the work of the Wales Wildfire Board and its key messages. Due to the nature of radio coverage, radio advertising can be organised at a local level, utilising the messages provided in this document.
- Key messages / social media messages – A central repository of preapproved/pre-translated messages is provided within the campaign page published on Mid and West Wales Fire and Service website #BurntoProtect along with associated downloadable social media graphics.
- Develop a package of content examining lessons learned from major wildfire incidents and highlighting how organisations worked together to protect communities and landscapes.
- Regular content showcasing examples of partnership working between Fire and Rescue Services, farmers, landowners, Natural Resources Wales and others.
- Content demonstrating how responsible land management, preparedness and prevention contribute to reducing wildfire risk across Wales.
- Provide briefing materials for elected members, partner organisations and community stakeholders to ensure consistent messaging.

Our Key Messages

- Summer 2026 demonstrated the growing challenge wildfire presents across Wales.
- Wildfire affects communities, businesses, agriculture, public services, wildlife and the environment.
- Preventing wildfires is a shared responsibility.
- Wildfire resilience requires partnership working between landowners, communities, emergency services, public bodies and government.
- Controlled burning remains an important land management tool when undertaken responsibly and in accordance with legislation and guidance.
- Farmers and landowners play a crucial role in reducing wildfire risk and improving landscape resilience.
- The lessons learned from the 2026 wildfire season will help shape future wildfire prevention and preparedness arrangements across Wales.
- Every responsible decision taken during the burn season helps reduce the likelihood and impact of future wildfires.
- The Wales Wildfire Board brings together organisations from across Wales to coordinate activity, share learning and improve resilience.
- By working together, we can help protect communities, livelihoods, landscapes and wildlife for future generations.

#BurnToProtect Launch Press Release (English)

After a summer Wales won't forget, landowners urged to #BurnToProtect

The Wales Wildfire Board is calling on farmers, landowners and rural communities across Wales to play their part in reducing the risk of future wildfires as it launches its annual #BurnToProtect campaign.

The launch follows one of the most significant wildfire seasons Wales has experienced. Summer 2026 was Wales' hottest on record and included the driest July ever recorded, creating ideal conditions for wildfire to spread rapidly across the countryside. During July and August, Welsh Fire and Rescue Services declared four major wildfire incidents at Conwy Mountain, Llanwonno Mountain, Llangynidr Reservoir and Rhandirmwyn.

The scale, duration and intensity of these incidents placed unprecedented pressure not only on emergency services, but also on partner agencies, local communities, farmers and landowners who found themselves on the frontline of the response. Welsh Fire and Rescue Services received mutual aid from neighbouring English Fire and Rescue Services, while in South Wales, military assistance was deployed to help support operations. Communities across Wales experienced disruption and uncertainty, farmers and landowners saw large areas of land affected, valuable habitats were damaged and, in some cases, families experienced the devastating loss of property.

Recognising that controlled burning remains an important land management tool when undertaken responsibly, the Wales Wildfire Board is encouraging those planning burns this season to work closely with their local Fire and Rescue Service, Natural Resources Wales, farming unions and other partners.

Farmers and landowners can burn heather, grass, bracken and gorse from 1 October until 15 March each year, extending until 31 March in upland areas. However, anyone intending to undertake a controlled burn should ensure a burn plan is in place and that all appropriate precautions have been taken.

As part of the #BurnToProtect campaign, the Wales Wildfire Board is reminding landowners of some simple but important safety advice:

- Notify your local Fire and Rescue Service before undertaking a controlled burn.
- Ensure you have sufficient people and equipment available to control the fire.
- Check weather conditions and wind direction before lighting any fire.

- Consider nearby properties, roads, livestock, habitats and wildlife.
- If a fire gets out of control, contact the Fire and Rescue Service immediately and provide accurate location details.
- Never leave a fire unattended.
- Ensure any fire is fully extinguished before leaving the site and revisit the area afterwards to check for reignition.

Andy Wright, Chair of the Wales Wildfire Board and Senior Specialist Advisor - Plant Health and Knowledge Transfer at Natural Resources Wales, said:

“This summer has changed the conversation around wildfire in Wales.

“People saw first-hand the scale of resources required to tackle large wildfires and the impact they can have on communities, businesses, farmland and the environment.

“One of the clearest lessons from recent months is that wildfire resilience cannot be delivered by emergency services alone. It depends on strong partnerships between land managers, public services, farmers, local communities and government.

“The Wales Wildfire Board was established to bring those partners together, ensuring we share expertise, learn from major incidents and take practical steps to reduce risk.

“As we look ahead to the forthcoming wildfire summit being organised by Welsh Government, there is a real opportunity to build on that collaboration and strengthen Wales’ long-term approach to wildfire prevention and preparedness.

“My message to farmers and landowners is simple: please take the time to plan, understand the risks and engage with your local partners before undertaking any controlled burn.

“You know your land better than anyone. By working with Fire and Rescue Services, Natural Resources Wales and farming representatives, you can play a crucial role in protecting livelihoods, enhancing resilience and helping to prevent the kind of large-scale wildfires that affected communities across Wales this summer.

“Wildfire prevention starts long before a fire begins. Every responsible decision taken this burn season is a step towards protecting our communities, our countryside and future generations.”

The Wales Wildfire Board brings together Fire and Rescue Services, Natural Resources Wales, Police Forces, farming unions, land managers and other partner organisations to better understand and reduce wildfire risk across Wales.

The lessons learned from the 2026 wildfire season will help inform discussions at the forthcoming wildfire summit later this autumn. Bringing together experts, responders, land managers and policymakers, the summit will provide an opportunity to share learning, strengthen partnerships and consider how Wales can further improve its approach to wildfire prevention, preparedness and long-term resilience.

By working together and sharing knowledge, the Wales Wildfire Board hopes to increase understanding of the simple actions that can reduce the likelihood and impact of wildfires, helping to protect Wales' communities, countryside and natural environment.

For further information about the #BurnToProtect campaign, including safety guidance and downloadable resources, visit your local Fire and Rescue Service website.

Notes to Editors

The Wales Wildfire Board is a multi-agency partnership committed to improving understanding and management of wildfire risk across Wales.

The Board works collaboratively with local communities, land managers, emergency services, public bodies and partner organisations to develop practical solutions that reduce wildfire risk, improve resilience and protect Wales' people, environment and economy.

The Board's work is delivered through the Wales Wildfire Charter, building on more than a decade of partnership working and recognising the increasing challenges posed by climate change, extreme weather and changing land-use patterns
